

this meeting connects with a meeting for professional biologists in the southeastern United States so we will be missing some of our professional friends at the meeting but we will still have a full cadre of knowledgeable individuals like Bob Van Hall, Tara Littlefield, Wilson Francis, and others to lead field trips. Our programs are top notch once again. Valerie Ferris will give the talk on Friday evening on the conservation of rare plants and what CPOB does at the Cincinnati Zoo. On Saturday night, one of my dear friends and colleagues, John Small, will provide a slide presentation on the Red River Gorge based on his book. He will have books for sale and signing after his program and I know you will enjoy listening to him and viewing his wonderful imagery.

My term as president is just about over and we need to recruit individuals to serve on the board and to serve as speakers. Please contact me about
