

I draw up a brief guide of potential yard trees for a client. My considerations for a list of yard trees involve several key climate change, 1) the likely survival of various species and genus trees that, hopefully, will be disease and pest resistant, but is that predictable, 2) aesthetics, including fall color, bark texture, stature, etc., to a lesser degree, leaf arrangement (the author acknowledges there is no accounting for taste), 3) the potential for increasing local biodiversity, and 4) general hardiness. There are three sug-
